THE JUDGE "GOT."

ow He Got Even in the End.

Judge Whibbledon, of the Twenty-ninth Judicial Circuit, is, while on the bench, a man of severe dignity, but in private life he is known as a gentleman of many admirable social qualities. Several days ago the Judge went out into the mountains to rest and amuse himself, in J had just dismounted from his horse when a petuliar looking old fellow came along the rough path that wound its way among the jugged rocks. The old fellow, upon spying the Judge, stopped, looked earnestly, and then an odd smile crept about the corners of his mouth, and then, as though seeking ambush, secreted itself in the old fellow's whiskers.

"Good morning," the Judge pleasantly

"Good morning," the Judge pleasantly

"Do you live about here?"
"Ah, hab."

"Any fish in this stream ?" "Plenty of squirrels up there, I suppose."

"Dunno." "Think we'll have rain?"

The Judge, somewhat disgusted, turned The Judge, somewhat disgusted, turned away and threw his line into the water. "Chag" a stone struck his cork. He turned quickly, but saw no movement on the part of the old fellow, who sat on a stone, with his hands shoved deep into his pockets."

"What was that?" the Judge demanded.

"What?"
"Something struck my cork."
"Don't know nothin' erbout it."

The Judge turned away, and the next moment another stone struck his cork. The Judge turned quickly, but the old fellow sat with his hands in his pockets. "Look here, sir, I believe that's you." "Yas, this is me."
"I say I believe you threw those stones."

"Which stones?" "Those that struck my cork. Don't you do it again?"

The Judge again devoted himself to his fishing, but not without interruption, for a stone came down and knocked his cork

"You confounded old wretch! What's the matter with you?
"Nothin'. Whut's the matter with "You good-for-nothing old rascal, you don't know how to treat a gentleman."

"Never had a chance to treat one at tall."

"Don't talk to me that way. You don't know who I am."

"Yas, I reckon I do." The smile sprang from its ambush in his whiskers and pranced over his face. "Some time aco," said the old fellow, "I was a witness in yo Cou t, an' while I wuz thar you iet one o' them lawyers ketch me in a lie on from ed in me an' jid over me an' til me down an' shuck yo' head at me an ilone everything you could to make me with that I wuz dead, an, now you must git."

"Wean that you mean?"

"What do you mean?"

"Mean that you must git; mosey way frum here. It's my time to make you feel mean. Drop that pole an' git."

"I won't do it sir."

"Won't you? Wait, we'll see."

He drew an enormous horse-pistol.

"Git!"

"Look out, I—"

"Git 1,"
Let me get my hat and coat."
"Never mind. Git!"
The Judge got, and when he returned home he told his wife that he had given his hat and coat to a poor blind man whom he had found in the hills.

"Yes. I jumped into the water to save a little girl."
"You're a noble man, Robert."

The country school-teacher had been telling her scholars about the seasons and their peculiarities, and to impress the facts upon their minds she questioned them upon the points she had given Several queries had been put, and she finally reached the stupid boy in the corner.

"Well, Johnny," she said, "have you'been paying attention?"
"Yes'm," he answered promptly.
"I am glad to hear it. Now can you tell me what there is in the Spring?"
"Yes'm, I can; but I don't want to."
"Oh, yes, you do! Don't be afraid.
You have heard the other scholars. Be a good boy now, and tell us what there is in the Spring."

A Bosrox minister, one who presides over a large and flourishing church at the South End, and "lends a hand" in all good enterprises, who was to preach in Providence, spent the night before with a friend in a village some miles distant, and walked to Providence Sunday morning. On the way, feeling hungry, he stopped at a house by the wayside, rang the bell, and asked the motherly-looking woman who came to the door if he could have a glass of milk and a slice of bread.

"Well," she answered, "I suppose you can; but it does seem at though a big, stout man like you might earn his living by work, and not beg for it."

He has been very considerate of tramps ever since.

"Young Man, do you want a job?"
asked a man of a bootblack.
"Betcherlife; wot is it boss?"
"You seem to be a clever sort of a fellow. How would you like to raise grapes for me on a small scale?"
Jest yer show me the opperchunity, boss."
"Well, if you go across the street, and lift some of those Delawares out of that basket in front of that fruit-dealer's, I'll give you ten cents."
"Too much money involved, boss."

THE CENTURY

MAGAZINE IN 1880.

WHY Has it such an enormous circula two and three millions of people read each number.

BECAUSE THE CENTURY is above every thing a leader. It led the development of wood-engraving in America, and it has fostered American authors. It is alive to the issues of to-day. What' it prints sets people to thinking and talking.

BECAUSE Whatever other periodicals the great reading world has found out that "no household can keep abreast of the times without THE CENTURY." "Its success is explained by its contents."

BECAUSE The greatest writers of the read by the greatest number, and therefore to such a magazine as THE CENTURY the best naturally comes. It was for THE CENTURY that General Grant first wrote his reminis-

BECAUSE It is publishing the life of private secretaries. Of this it has been said, "The young man who is not reading it robs himself of that which he will hunger for." The coming year presents the most important part of this great history, which may begin at any time.

BECAUSE It is printing those remarka-the Exile System. "by George Kenman, which are attracting universal attention and are be-ing reprinted in hundreds of foreign news-papers, but are not allowed to enter Russia. The "Chicago Tribune" says that "no other magazine articles printed in the English lan-guage just now touch upon a subject which so vitally interests all thoughtful people in Europe and America and Asia." They are "as judicial as the opinion of a Supreme Court tribunal—as thrilling as the most sensational drama."

BECAUSE During 1889 THE CENTURY ings of the greatest pictures of the old Italian masters, made by Timothy Cole, the leading wood-engraver in the world, who has spent four years in Italy on this work; a series of "Strange True Stories of Louisiana," by Geo. W. Cable; accasional richly illustrated papers describing the scenes of the current International Sunday-school lessons; interesting illustrated papers on Ireland, and a series of humorous and pathetic Irish-American stories; a striking illustrated novelette, "The Romanco of Dollard," by a new writer, and other novelettes to be announced later; supplemental war papers, untechnical and descriptive of special racidents; "Pictures of the Far West," by Mary Hallock Foote, etc., etc. We have not space here to announce all the new features. THE recent denials of several leading Republicans who the Cabinet makers had selected for General Harrison's political family, that they were to receive appointments, shows that all information relative to the construction of the Cabinet, has so far been the guess-work of newspaper correspondents and reporters. During the next three months the President-elect will doubtless find the men wanted for [ASSOCIATED PRESS DISPATCHES TO THE the several heads of departments, without officious suggestions from anybody, and the general belief is, that in his selection, especial referance will be had to ability and fitness, rather than to geographical lines. He is particularly fortunate in having so large a number of the brightest men of the nation from which to choose. Pacific Coast people earnestly hope that a Cabluet portfolio will be offered to some prominent citizen of this locality, but it is by no means certain that their wishes will be gratified.

THERE is a growing demand in Nevada for better schools. Nevada is a progressive State, and our people will be satisfied with nothing less than the best educational facilities for their children. In some districts too many studies are pursued in the schools, and in others too little is attempted. The need of the schools is a course of study that will be uniform throughout the State, so that children removing from one district to another may find themselves in their usual classes without loss of valuable time. Fortunately our State Board of Education has the authority, and the law makes it their duty, to prescribe and cause to be adopted the course of study in the public schools. Let us hope that the Board may promptly and efficiently do this work for the public schools of Nevada.

THE French Republic is having a hard time of it between enemies within and enemies without its borders. The Royalists are becoming every day more active, seeking an opportunity for restoration to an opportunity for restoration to power, and Germany and Italy have formed an aggravating alliance, which the organ of the Italian War, Office predicts will force France to war. It is impossible for France to deal with her enemies in other lands until war has been declared but she would be justified in dealing harshly with the Royalists, who are, to all intents and purposes, traitors to the Government, since they live under it, yet seek its overthrow. They are not, it is to be observed, opposed to the administration, but to the form of Govern-

Ir is singular, says the Record-Union, that in his review of the affairs of the country President Cleveland made no mention of the demand of several Territories for admission into the Union. The creation of sovereign States, the assertion of the right of local selfgovernment-these are subjects of foremost importance, yet the President, so far as his message discloses, never heard of the fact that five Territories are demanding admission, and that three of them have prepared State Constitutions and submitted them to Congress for examination.

The Committee on Merchant Marine and Fisheries has determined to take action relative to the alleged perpetration of outrages on the persons of females and their restraint of liberty, said to exist in Alaska. At the last session of Congress the committee was authorized to make an investigation into the fur seal fisheries of Ataska, and ask whether the contract allowing the Alaska Seal Company the exclusive right to take fur seals has been violated, but Congress adjourned before the investigation had been concluded. At a meeting to-day, the committee determined, before making a report, it would call before it persons making statements concerning the condition of affairs that are said to exist in Alaska, and examine them upon the subject at an early date.

Rioting in a Missouri Town. Sr. Louis, Dec. 7 .- Adjutant-Gen ral Jamison, by order of Governor lorehouse, has gone to the scene of the riots at Bevier.

The latest advices from Brevier, are to the effect that an armed neutrality Committee on the Pacific roads have decided to press the consideration of the Pacific railroad funding bill by the House, at as early a day as possible.

Outhwaite, Chairman of the Committee, is confident of the passage of the bill by a good majority, if it can can be brought to a vote. The work of the committee is practically completed. Several bills relating to the Pacific railroads are before it, but as there is no possibility of their being taken up by the House at this late day, probably no action will be taken upon them by the Committee.

It was ordered that when the House adjourns to-day, that it be until Monday. The Committee on elections submitted a report in the South Corolina contested election case of Smalls carsing Elliot. The Committee finds against Elliot against a when purchasing Coal Oil, to obtain an article that will be perfectly safe and of good burning quality. The fact is now generally recognized that our "STAR" and "EXLRA STAR" Oils are the safest and best illuminating oils ever offered, being superior in fire test and burning quality to all others. These oils are remarkably uniform, which is a decided advantage to the consumer. They will cost no more than inferior brands that are being put on the market branded "High Fire Test," but which are really only 10% to 11%, rendering them very unsafe oils for family use. We guarantee the "EXTRA STAR" better in every respect than the Elaune, Dewners, or any of the fancy brands sold at higher prices. We have had great difficulty in obtaining a sufficient supply to meet the large and increasing demand for our brands. THE VESTIBULE TRAIN.

it Runs Thorough in 84 Hours, Baking the Trip One of Luxury.

The first vestibule train which has ever entered this State arrived to-day. It consisted of five cars, which were built at an expense of $173,000. This vestibule train is also known as the 'Golden Gate Special," and is the handsomest train that has ever been run on any railroad in the world. The five cars are complete in every particular, and it can be described as a town on wheels. The first car is called the Golden Gate, which is a composite car. Here are located the barbershop gentlemen's bathroom, and has a tub so long that a tall man can lie in it and boil himself in hot water or shiver in cold water. The

BARBER SHOP

Is well appointed, and has an abundance of perfumery jars and scented soaps. The forepart of this car is a machine shop, wherein is every tool in case of an accident. Here is also the electrical apparatus, under the care of I. Kett, which lights the cars with the incandescent electric light. Back of this car is the Casa Monica, where the dining-room is situated, and also the kitchen and the pantry. The dining car is a revelation in dining-rooms. The tables are so arranged that four persons can be seated, and by each table is a tasty bracket where grow rare exotics, which shed a delicious fragrance. The service is solid silver, the damask white, and the waiters, trained in swell New York clubs, are perfection. The kitchen has a range such as is used in all big hotels, and there are four cooks. The waiters number five, making a complement of nine for the DINING-ROOM And kitchen. They are under the management of C. R. Hnghes. The commissary is Major Trout, who was stationed for some time in San Francisco, and is a retired officer of the regular army. Everything that the most fastidious appetite can desire is provided for by Major Trout. Fish, flesh and game are in the lockers, icecream freezes in a huge freezer, bread s baked hot for the table, and there is not the least vestige of a tin can eveverything is fresh. There are two sleepers attached to the train-the Khiva and Rahula. Bath are upholstered in peacock blue. Each have elaborate lavatories, with hot and cold water, and the drinking water is from the famous Silurian spring at Waukesha. This water is cooled through a series of pipes covered over with ice, so as to prevent it being fouled by dirty ice. There is a lady's maid in attendance whose name is Miss Kate Flood. Each car has an elaborately finished parlor, and in each car is a reservation for ladies who can, if not desirons of being frightened by the

Their Business Booming.

Probably no one thing has caused such a revival of trade at Hodgkinstore as their giving away to their custo mers of so many free trial bottles of Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. Their trade is sim-ply enormous in this very valuable ply enormous in this very valuable article from the fact that it always cures and never disappoints. Coughs, code, asthma, bronchitis, croup and all throat and lung diseases quickly cured. You can test it before buying by getting a trial bottle free, large size $1. Every bottle warranted.

Not Easily Reformed. The Young Men's Christian Association at New York recently resolved to make an effort toward improving the Telegraph and District Messenger boys of that city, but in the initial attempt last Tuesday evening the Young Men's Christian Association was knocked out in the first round An entertaining performance was arranged for them, but they smoked cigarettes and run the exhibition themselves. Nothing could be done withe the young savages, and Dr. Paxton says he don't want to have anything more to do toward "reforming" them.

For First Place.

The Law in Relation to the bling Bill Disen

EDITOR GAZETTE: You having commented on "X's" article which appeared recently in the Journal, noted that he failed to suggest the proper course to pursue in the matter disussed. Not being learned in the law is a sufficient apology for that shortcoming. The GAZETTE is correct in suggesting that the information relative to the voting population should come from the Commissioners. They have spoken, and the Clerk, if he has done his duty, has placed on record what the Commissioners voiced. To a commoner it appears farcical to require the three men who control certain of county affairs to meet in solemn session and resolve that certain things were done which have been done, and by reason thereof a certain law is in force, and to serve a copy of these resolutions upon any official to advise him it is his duty to do this or that. To a common mind the record of the Commissioners is the record of the Commissioners is notice to all county officials of what has been done, and especially to the Auditor and the Sheriff, as to establishing the fact of the number of votes cast at the last election. If they desire information in the matter, let them, as it is their duty, consult the official records of the Commissioners, which are creat all times for their which are open at all times for their inspection, the same as the laws of the State, which they are presumed State, which they are pres to know. It will not require as great amount of moral courage to peer be-tween the lids of the records which will advise them of the official acts of will advise them of the official acts of the Commissioners, as it may to per-form certain duties required of them by law, which might have a tendency to effect their popularity two years hence. If the Auditor and Sheriff, or anyone, can point to any statute which imposes any fur-ther action on the Commissioners than that taken by them relative to elections, or require them by resolution or otherwise to advise any officer that a cer-tain law is in effect they will meet and do it because they are willing to do their duty. A deed of record is notice to the world of that fact, so is a mortgage, so are the decrees and judgments of courts as to what they contain, so are certain acts of the Commissioners, and especially is the one which de-clares the number of votes cast for each of the several candidates for office at the last election, all concerned are bound to recognize and act upon without further notice and should do so without fear or favor. IRON MAKERS PREPARING FOR BIG ENTERPRISES.

Ponderous Machinery That Is Being Con-structed for Government Work—Two thousand Pounders to Be Turned Out

Every year the machinery in the iron mills of Pittsburg, Pa., is being made more ponderous. The necessity for this lies in the demand for immense eastings. Everything is growing larger than in former times. Ships are bigger, locomotives are more powerful, iron-front buildings are higher, and agricultural implements are vastly larger. The development of mill apparatus to meet this increase has been gradual, but within the last two years a wonderful impetus has been given the forward movement by the building of the new war vessels for the United States Navy.

Andrew Carnegie has just completed the building of a mill at Braddock, one of the suburbs of Pittsburg, expressly intended for the manufacture of this government work. There is not a single bit of ment work. There is not a single bit of apparatus in it but what is the largest of apparatus in it but what is the largest of its kind in the world. The shears, which snap a bar of iron in two as though it were tissue paper, exceed anything in size that has ever been known by the sons of Vulan. The lathes are greater, the rolls are longer and heavier than anything the balance of the country can show, and even the steam boilers are the largest ever made by the hand of man. In the Black Diamond Sttel Works, Thirtieth street, Pittsburg, there is the largest steam-hammer in the United States. The blow of fifty tons which it strikes every second of fifty tons which it strikes every second of time that it is in operation shakes the earth for two squares around the mill. Yet it is so easily controlled, and so nicely adjusted, that the hammerman has placed on the anvil block beneath it a delicate wine glass containing an egg, and turn-ing on the steam full force would let the ing on the steam full force would let the ponderous weight above fall until at a certain distance, and then shut the steam off. In this way the hammer has been kept for several minutes gently tapping the glass and egg without breaking them. But now the government itself is going to throw all these marvelous achievements in the background by the improvements at the Navy Yard in Washington City. They will transform that quiet place into the most powerful workshop in the universe. For instance, there was not found in the mills and foundries of the whole United States "traveling cranes" big enough to move about the immense castings and wrought-iron parts of large cannon which the War and Navy departments have projected. These cranes are ments have projected. These cranes are very familiar objects in the yards of iron mills everywhere. They are simply a block-and-tackle arrangement so fixed upon a steam car that they will pick up a heavy piece of metal and rush off speedily to any part of the buildings with it. The largest of these "travelers" in Pittsburg will carry a burden of thirty tons with safety to the ropes and rigging. In the Midville Steel Works, Pennsylvania, a traveling crane of twenty-six tons capacity has been erected to facilitate the handling of castings for the new war ships. These are now the two largest apparatus of the kind in the country. But work will soon be commenced on a travel-ing crane for the Washington Navy Yard which will have a carrying capacity of 110 tons. This is intended for use in the manufacture of a 110-ton gun, which when finished will be the largest in the coast defense of the United States. To "turn" this wonderful cannon a lathe is now being made which will surpass all other lathes in size. The machine will other lathes in size. The machine will have to be 120 feet long, and will have a "tread" of nine feet. The gun itself will be fifty feet long, and to turn and bore it the lathe will, of course, be required to be double that length.

All the tools and machinery to make this big cannon are being made purposely for the job, so large and strong must they be. The contract for delivery of the necessary steel forgings has been concluded with the Bethlehem Steel Works of East-ern Pennsylvania. But before that company could make the forgings they too had to erect a new plant large enough for the big sizes. The 110-ton gun will be of 16-inch caliber, will require a charge of 1,000 pounds of powder, and will throw a projectile weighing 2,000 pounds. To even make these projectiles will necessitate larger machinery in that line than is now in existence. Then, to transport the gun finally over the different lines of railroad (if the ocean route is not taken), would require stronger iron bridges than are now in use. So the work of enlargement goes on almost indefinite L. E. STOFIEL

MRS. L. WALLACE AND CLEOPATRA.

Some Criticisms of the Famous Queen-A New Version of the Story of Lady El-

Mrs. Lew Wallace has been writing a new book which she calls "The Repose in Egypt," In it she discusses the Pyrsmids, Sues and Sinai, the Obeliaks and Alexandria, and, in connction with her so-count of the latter city, shetells some entertaining things regarding Cleopatra, who, once in the tropical airs of that old city, rode on swift camels and floated in gilded barges with Anthony, and, after years of revel, she was buried there, with imperial pomp, in his tomb. For women who erroneously think that beauty alone pleases, Mrs. Wallace pictures Cleopatra as bewitching in manners, but not, personally, even pretty. She had command of seven languages, and she knew how to flatter the vanity of men, by adapting herself to their varying moods and exerting herself to be fascinating. Her whole aim and study was to please, and her voice was like a musical instrument tuned with many strings. The secret of her success with Anthony was that she gave him no time to think, lest reflection and repentance might rob her of here. Mrs. Wallace saw the portrait of Cleopatra at Dendersh, and has much of interest to say of this woman who held in check the generals wars, changed the map of the world, and added miseries to the hard fate of the Egyptians.

One of the pretty word-pictures made by fate of the Egyptians. fate of the Egyptians.

One of the pretty word-pictures made by Mrs. Wallace is her account of the Bosphorus at that point where the sweet waters of Asia meet the rapid currents of this river. Here it is:—"Would you have one day like the stuff which dreams are made of, an idyllic day, that will stand apart from other pictured memories far and near, go to the Valley of Sweet Waters, the beauty-spot of the Bosphorus. In the lazy afternoons it is the resort of lovely ladies, reliid as Illies robed in varyances.

what eyes they have! Bright as stars, black as death, dreamy pictures they make, reclining on the crimson cushions of the rocking carique, which is draped with India shawl or Persian hangings.

The armed slave in the stern is clad in barbaric splendor, the rowers in wide, white trousers and scarlet jackets, stiff with gold embroidery. Greek boatmen, bearing the old names that can never

But by far the most attractive portion of her book is the account of Lady Ellenborough, the Euglish woman who deserted home, husband and children, to go and live in the East. The author tells it at considerable length, and with a needless amount of reticence as regards real ames, as the world has known these many years, Lady Ellen—as she calls her—fied from Lady Ellen—as she calls her—fled from England to Italy, and, after years of reckless living, went to Greece. Her husband divorced himself from her, and her large fortune was at her disposal. She married a nobleman in the service of King Otho, of Greece, and lost her husand through the Queen's command. Lady Ellen then went to the East, and Mrs. Wallace says of her travels:

'She would be queen again in another

' She would be queen again in another empire, a Zenobia, a ruler in the desert, and her willing subjects should be the untamed and untamable Bedouids. To fit herself for fresh adventure and saved their imaginary sceptre, Lady Ellen stud-ied Arabic . . . There are old citizens of Beyrout who remember the stir among an idle populace when the great English lady landed at the seaport, and, uncrowned, yet a queen, set out for the shadowy realm where she should rule by divine right. Dady Ellen bought a palace at Damascus and furnished it luxuriously. Said one of her countrywomen, resid at Damascus, she was always the perfect lady in sentiment, voice, manners, speech; for those who enjoyed her confidence it was a treat to pass hours in her society. The vari colored shows of Damascus had a strong hold on Lady Ellen, and they amused her for a time, but her palace was filled, and the monotony of the place palled upon her. One morning she ab-Damascus, and longed to see Bagdad. Why should she be cooped up in stone walls when the free desert was wooing her? She went into the desert under the escort of Sheik Antarand a small retinue. Very naturally he fell in love with the unveiled Giaour, and finally he proposed to divorce all his Moslem wives and marry Lady Ellen. One half the year he would pass with her in Damascus, and the other half in the desert. She married him in his tent with no witnesses but his amazed companions. To her horror, she learned that she had, in so doing, lost her nationality and become a Turkish subject. But she never repented. She made over to him her palace and her gardens at Damascus, and for six months of each year. mascus, and for six months of each year she was on the desert. For fifteen years she lived this life, and was never sepa-rated from her husband, to whom she was devotedly attached. It was said that she never lost anything of the English lady, nor the softness of a woman; to the last she was fresh and young, brave, re-fined and delicate. Her grave is a beautiful shrine—a shady pavilion of rosy-veined marble pillared with silver and pearl and ceiled with vermillion and bine. She was worshiped by the tribe, and to this day the Arabs of the desert sing the tender romance of their Chief Insen, whose hair was of amber, whose eyes were like Strius when the Nile begins to swell."

Obeying Orders

A nobleman who loved society was in the habit of frequently inviting a few friends to dinner. He was not rich, however, and only kept one servant. One day, as he sat at the table with a guest, a new servant entered with a covguest, a new servant entered with a covered dish.

"What have you got there, John?"
asked the nobleman.

"A roasted fowl, my lord."
The nobleman said nothing till after the departure of his friend, when he called his servant before him.

"Lohn" said he. "you would have done.

"John," said he, "you would have done the house more honor if you had said 'roasted fowels.' Remember that here-'Yes, my lord."

A fortnight afterward the nobleman invited several more friends to dinner. Upon the servant entering with an assistant, each carrying a dish, the master

The man had not forgotten the correct on he had undergone, and replied,—
"Roasted oxen and calves."

The company burst into a fit laughter, and the host joined them.

Signaling a Street Car.

"It's fun watchin' the way folks signal to us," said the driver. "I can size 'en up every time. First, there's the kitchen mechanic, the real potwolloper. She stands in the middle of the street and says 'Hulloo!' a wavin' both arms as though she was shootin' the cows out of the garden. Then comes the up stairs girl—the genteel kind. She turns coyly to one side and waves her hand as though somebody was pullin' the string. As for the missis, she stands on the curb and gently but impressively lifts one finger. The old chap with spectacles and a black suit shakes his gold-headed cane at you and roars 'Stop that car, you rascal!' suit shakes his gold-headed cane at you and roars 'Stop that car, you rascal!' while the dude stops sucking the head of his big stick long enough to hold it up languidly with an air that means 'Hold up, fellah,' though he hasn't enough lungs or energy to say it. Last of all is the business man who never opens his head or looks at you, but just stands there beside the track thinking up some new scheme, and when the car comes along he makes a grab at it and swings on. Yes, there's plenty of fun in this business if you only know how to get a hold of it."—New York Tribune.

Aneedote of Darwin.

The following, said to be an authentic anecdote of Charles Darwin, is going the round of the American papers. It refers to his old age—the period when he was bringing out his books on the habits of plants.

His health was poor; and an old family servant — a woman — overhearing his daughter express some anxiety about his condition, sought to reassure her by saying:

"Hi believe master 'd be hall right, madam, hif 'e only 'ad somethin' to hoccupy 'is mind; sometimes 'e stands in the conservatory from mornin' till night—just a-lookin' at the flowers. Hif 'e only had somethin' to do, 'e'd be hever so much better, hi'm sure."

The spinner of this story says, "No one enjoyed the joke more than the great naturalist himself."
